Dear Mr. Presley,

I am very concerned about the effects of non-sustainable palm oil production on rainforests in Indonesia and Malaysia. At the rate that the rainforest is being cut down, orangutans and many other species will be extinct in a few years.

As a consumer of your products, I'm urging you to please* REMAIN a member of the Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil (RSPO). By remaining a member, you are demonstrating to your suppliers and consumers the following:

- Your commitment to sustainable practices that benefit wildlife and wild places.
- Your commitment to transparency and accountability throughout the supply chain by abiding by the principles and criteria of the RSPO.
- That there is a market for certified sustainable palm oil.

Additionally, RSPO members have access to a strategic platform to create and influence policies and key decisions, and benefit from practices on agricultural, environmental and social aspects. I encourage you to remain a part of the conversation to improve palm oil practices.

I would like to remain one of your customers; however I am committed to supporting those companies that are committed to using only certified sustainably palm oil.

Thank you for your consideration
